The Chippewa Indians called themselves Anishinabe, which means "original man." They were also called Ojibwa by other tribes. The name was later changed by the French and British to Chippewa.

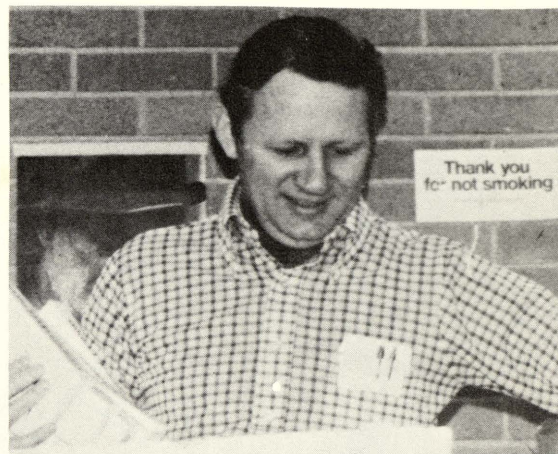

Legend relates that the Chippewa, Ottawa, and Potawatomi were originally all one tribe that came from the north. They arrived at the upper part of Lake Huron at an early time and dividing into three different tribes later. The Chippewa tribe was one of the largest tribes north of Mexico. This book is dedicated to these native Americans for whom our school is named.

Administration

Maurice L. Mellor

Chippewa principal Maurice Mellor and assistant principal Harold Billeter have perhaps the most difficult jobs in the school. They are responsible for seeing that all systems operate smoothly.

Harold Billeter

Our secretaries are very important to us. They are willing to help you when you are sick or injured. They eagerly type papers for teachers and give them all their messages. They also give you daily school bulletins. They are busy all hours of the day.

The custodians keep our school warm and clean. We depend on them for almost everything. For example, they clean our pool, wash the bathing suits, and control the heat. They also clean and organize every room in the school. In the summer they cut the grass, and in the winter they shovel the snow. The custodians let us be proud of our school.

Our cafeteria is kept clean and organized by the people who work in it.

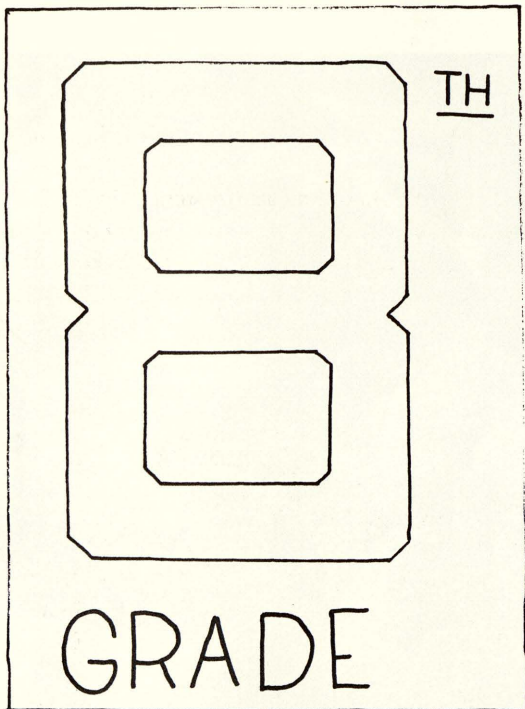

Each person who works in our cafeteria has an important job. The cooks prepare our lunch and make sure that we get enough food. Others supervise the activities during lunch time. They make sure that nothing gets out of hand. After everybody has eaten, the cafeteria is cleaned and organized. Our cafeteria is a pleasant place to eat, because of the people who work in it.
